

The Artists

Leah Sobsey

As an artist and educator, her combined art and anthropology background shaped her love of stories and gave her the tools to artfully map and investigate people's and institutions' stories. She has an MFA in photography and a BA in Anthropology and Sociology and her work is held in both public and private collections across the country. Currently a faculty member at The University of North Carolina Greensboro and an instructor and The Center For Documentary Studies at Duke University, she teaches workshops nationally and internationally.

Lynn Bregman Blass

Both an artist and a family therapist, she has spent the last 25 years investigating the inner narratives and the stories of peoples lives through her artwork and her psychotherapy practice. She creates a unique space for people to share their personal stories and life experiences, holding both undergraduate and advanced degrees in psychology with a minor in theater arts. Her artwork is held in both public and private collections across the country and she teaches workshops in the medium of encaustic painting across the country.
