Partnering with urban brand Crooked Inception, New York artist Kevin Bourgeois' art comes to life in a new form. Known for using the challenging medium of graphite, Bourgeois expands its boundaries in ways that invite inspection, contemplation and interrogation through an almost painterly application of pencil on paper.

Intellectual without being overly academic, definitive without being dogmatic, his imagery displays a keen curiosity in what dwells beneath the surface. His combination of socio-political messages, formal technique and aesthetically appealing imagery, betray the stereotypical assumptions of socially explorative urban art. The writings of Jean Baudrillard, Hakim Bey, Allen Ginsberg and Arthur Rimbaud frequently appear interwoven in the drawings, and serve as an influence in the subject matter.

In addition to his own images, Bourgeois will be curating the Crooked Inception line to incorporate the work of other artists, so stay tuned for more limited edition styles coming soon. Crooked Inception donates their clothing each time an item is purchased, so you won't be the only one to benefit from your new gear.
